

Senior Seminar - 28 March 1975 - 1:30 to 3:30
John F. Blake - Deputy Director for Administration

SCOPE NOTE

Mr. Blake has elected to share with us some opinions and observations on a current management challenge. The issue he brings, not unique to himself or his Directorate, is that of endeavoring to simultaneously discharge one's current and continuing responsibilities as assigned by the Director and coping with the external demands upon us. These two forces represent a unique problem in the determination of one's priorities and the application of one's energy, and present a significant challenge to the exercise of leadership and the maintenance of morale.
